The Gallup McKinley County School’s Parents as Teachers, home visiting program has been part of a superhero group that was required to continue working throughout the COVID 19 pandemic. Through lockdowns of the surrounding Navajo and Zuni reservations and the city of Gallup, barricaded to all but those who live in the city limits this group of educators continues to find ways to reach their families. Because of their dedication and care, we have quite a lot to celebrate as the 2020-21 school year ends.

We have had a vacancy since September 2020 and needed to ensure the families on the caseload were covered. Each parent educator worked to contact the families to address multiple needs. Overall, the program as a whole has met 95% percent or better on all of our benchmarks during our review. Here are a few highlights from our year:

- 134 families were served throughout the 21-22 school year.
- 1627 virtual visits were completed.
- 11 fathers participated, 3 while also in the military.
- 18 teen parents
  - 7 graduating from high school
  - 2 being promoted to the next grade.
- 1 graduating with an AA
- 1 graduating with a Masters Degree.
